

'The Cruel Sea'

Proves Men More

Valorous Than Words

THE CRUEL SEA, by Nicholas Monsarrat; Alfred A. Knopf, New York.

This is one of the best sea novels of our time.

It is the story of a corvette chasing submarines in the North Atlantic in World War II — or rather two corvettes, for the British crew had their first ship torpedoed out from under them.

It is a story of incredible danger and suffering, relieved, however, by reunion with their women folks ashore, and ultimate victory over the Germans.

It is a story of personal bravery and will to win that lights up this whole 20th century of cynicism, cowardice and treachery. Oddly enough — for a book so totally different — I thought, while reading "The Cruel Sea," about Rhett Butler and his role in "Gone With the Wind." Rhett Butler, you recall, remained aloof from the Confederacy until the very last, boasting that some men made money building up an empire but he made money by tearing it down — until the very last, when he joined up and fought for the South anyway.

There are men in "The Cruel Sea" who talk like Rhett Butler, debate the equal merits of alien gospel and democracy — but the printed word reports that they volunteered to hunt submarines in the icy sea, fought loyally from beginning to end, and many died before victory.

This is the story of Commander Ericson, Sub-Lieutenant Lockhart and their crew — first aboard the Compass Rose, and, after she was torpedoed, in their larger frigate, the Saltash . . . four years of adventure, war, and death. It is not merely a novel; it is a tremendously detailed account of actual life at sea in wartime, told by one of the great writers of our day.

There are moments of supreme suspense. As when the hunter creeps up from behind on a German submarine which was itself stalking the convoy — and depth-bombs the Nazi into surrender. And moments of utter horror. As when a sea of burning oil engulfs the swimming crew of a torpedoed tanker.

Never for a moment are you permitted to forget that all this was the price of victory — and not a chapter was less than inevitable.

It is a magnificent story of devotion and courage — without which there is no victory, without which there is no nation.

Clifton Fadiman, of the Book-of-the-Month organization, says that in Commander Ericson the author has "drawn the finest portrait of an English seaman to appear in fiction since Horatio Hornblower." But I have read all of the Hornblower stories, and great as C. S. Forester is I think Nicholas Monsarrat has topped him.

The Hornblower stories, by the way, have been put into pictures. "Captain Horatio Hornblower" is coming to the Saenger this weekend. I haven't seen the movie, but I can guarantee you the stuff it's taken from is sharp and exciting.

AFL Plans to Take Stand by Itself

San Francisco, Sept. 18 — (AP) — The American Federation of Labor plans to take its stand on 1952 congressional elections without regard to the attitude of other labor organizations.

The AFL's labor league for political education, meeting at the federation's annual convention, last night drew plans for a strictly independent campaign — as opposed to the AFL-CIO unity program which featured the 1950 elections.

Today the delegates took time off from the convention business for a day of sight seeing.

The league's administrative committee, in rejecting the 1950 CIO-AFL public campaign, declared: "One lesson that we should have learned x x x is that labor can often get too much public credit for supporting a particular candidate. x x x In some instances we only played into the hands of our enemies, who pointed to our own publicity and said, 'the labor bosses have teamed up on me.'"

However, if the education league has its way, the AFL's political effort won't be weakened. The committee said it must redouble its efforts to get out the votes for candidates friendly to labor.

"There is no question," it reported, "that we have the votes to elect a friendly congress in 1952. But those votes are purely potential. Registration drives must be commenced wherever they are not being carried on now."

Whenever possible, the committee said, our leagues should start exerting influences on both parties to put up good candidates.

The committee set as its goal for 1952 the election of a congress which will repeal the Taft-Hartley labor law.

And it warned AFL members that they face a tough campaign "character assassination and outright misrepresentation — backed by huge expenditures of money."

The AFL's campaign will be directed especially at the big city vote.

Gets 9 Years on 2nd Degree Murder Charge

Leonor McFaddin, negro, was found guilty of second-degree murder by a Hempstead Circuit Court jury and sentenced by Judge Dick Huie of Arkadelphia to 9 years in the state penitentiary.

McFaddin was charged with the fatal cutting of Laveda Walker, negro, in an altercation at a negro church near Washington. The jury reduced the first degree murder charge to second degree.

A negro served on the jury. Two negroes involved in the beating robbery of another negro near the Handle Mill here last March were also found guilty and sentenced.

Augusta Carrigan, charged with assault with intent to kill, was found guilty and given a one-year sentence.

A. C. Johnson, negro, charged with robbery in the same case, was found guilty and sentenced to 3 years in the state penitentiary. He was defended by F. C. Crow who was appointed by the state.

Ellison Hopkins, charged with possession of liquor, dismissed. Harold Hendrix vs. Willie Downs, non-suit declared.

C. O. Shirley, James E. Shirley and Jacksonville Motor Co. vs. Charles L. Huffman, dismissed with prejudice.

In other civil action General Contract Purchase Corporation was awarded judgment against the Rev. H. Paul Holdridge for $2,000 with a temporary stay of execution.

The court will reconvene here tomorrow.

Iran Leader Is Shaking Up Cabinet

Tehran, Iran, Sept. 18 — (AP) — Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh was reported today to be shaking up his cabinet to strengthen his Nationalist government against internal political opposition and economic pressure from Britain.

Finance Minister Mohammed Ali Varesi has submitted his resignation, informed sources said. He has been reported increasingly critical of Mossadegh's financial policies in the light of Iran's loss of oil revenues.

Varesi, who headed the Iranian delegation in the unsuccessful talks with Britain's representative, Richard Stokes, supported the nationalization by Iran of the Anglo-Iranian Oil company holdings, but opposed Mossadegh's policy of getting tough with the British regarding loss of the economic consequences.

Deputy Prime Minister Hossein Fatemi said cabinet shifts are in the wind, but that new ministers would not be presented to the Shah before Saturday.

The cabinet has been meeting on how to deal with British economic pressure. The government already is striking back by placing severe restrictions on the British Bank of Iran and the Middle East, second largest British enterprise in Iran after the now nationalized Anglo-Iranian Oil company. The British bank is banned from further dealings here in foreign exchange and, all government-owned enterprises, factories and insurance companies will be instructed to withdraw their accounts from the bank.

Diplomatic sources said the bank, a main credit source for Iranian merchants for 60 years, probably would have to cease operations if these orders are carried out to the letter.

(In London the bank issues a statement saying that even if the foreign exchange authorization were withdrawn — despite the lack of the six months notice — this "would not prevent the bank from carrying on other banking business in Iran." It added that the bank does business in other Middle Eastern countries and that for the last two years "none of the bank's profits has been derived from Iran.")

Mossadegh had sent the ultimatum to Washington for delivery to Britain in hopes of getting the United States troubleshooter to enter the stalled negotiations again.

Final Rites for McNab Resident

Funeral services for Charles W. Erwin, 57, who died Sunday at his home in McNab, will be held at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday at the McNab Church of Christ, by the Rev. Oscar Smith of Texarkana. Burial will be at Saratoga with Herndon Cornelius in charge.

DEATH TOLL RISES

Campinas, Brazil, Sept. 18 — (AP) — Death toll in a movie theater collapse here Sunday has risen to 25, most of them children. Another 65 were gravely injured and long lines of blood donors have flocked to hospitals to give them transfusions. Estimates of total number injured ranged from 300 to 800.

Military Budget Gets Approval

Washington, Sept. 18 — (AP) — Congress gave its final approval today to a $3,864,178 military construction program designed to shore up this country's defense against Russia.

House approval of a conference committee agreement adjusting house-senate differences over a few items sent the bill to President Truman.

The measure authorizes construction of hundreds of air bases, depots, training camps and other military installations in this country and abroad. Congress has yet to appropriate the money to pay for them.

The biggest share of the program is for the air force, approximately $3,400,000,000 including about $1,000,000,000 to build a string of secret overseas bases girdling Russia.

Here's what other branches of the armed services get: Army inside continental United States $890,000,000; outside, $17,000,000; secret facilities $300,000,000. Total $1260.

Navy and marines inside continental United States $597,000,000; outside, $74,000,000; secret $113,000,000. Total, $785,000,000.

In addition millions of dollars will be shared by all three services.

NOT TREASON

Los Angeles, Sept. 18 — (AP) — If this be treason, Florida will have to make the most of it.

Yesterday she enrolled in the University of Southern California. She will study drama, close by the Hollywood studios.

The Great American Tragedy of Today Is Simply the Average Cup of Coffee

By HAL BOYLE
New York — (AP) — The great American tragedy today is the average cup of coffee.

The average cup of coffee is what the average man gets when he asks for a good cup of coffee.

And it makes him madder than corruption if government, the decline of youthful morals, or a hole in his sock.

He is willing to put up with most of the blishments of an imperfect world. He will face up to the fact life has him behind the 8-ball; he will, under pressure, admit to certain small defects in his own character; he does not, ordinarily, complain that all horse races are fixed just because the horse he bet on lost.

In most things he will take the bitter with the sweet. But not when it comes to his cup of coffee. Here he stands four-square against any compromise. He wants exactly what he wants, and nothing else will make him happy.

And the real issue before the people every day is: How to get a good cup of coffee. Not a good cup of nickel coffee. That issue has been fought out and lost. The problem is where to get an honest, flavor cup of coffee that will reach down into the gnawing morning anxiety of a man and say, "there, there, everything's going to be all right today."

Give a man the wrong cup of coffee, however, and nothing can make his day right. He will criticize his own mother-in-law and detect hidden flaws in her daughter. He'll sing a song of woe until two light.

Why is it so difficult to get a good cup of coffee? Brewing it is

Dr. Camp Tells Lions Value of Education

Dr. Dolph Camp, President of Southern State College, told the Hope Lions club Monday that "we must educate, not only for vocational values, but for cultural and moral value as well. There is a great tendency for young people today to think the world owes them a living. We have to dispell that idea from our thinking before we can expect to be successful in combating communism abroad," the Educator declared.

Dr. Camp reminisced about his early teaching days in Hope. He said he had a strong feeling for Hope, partly because his daughter, Pam Camp, former Miss Arkansas, was born here.

Other business, including plans for the Livestock Show were discussed in today's meeting.

Principal Still Won't Salute Flag

Hall, Ind., Sept. 18 — (AP) — A school principal who refuses to salute the flag for religious reasons failed to show up at school today. 24 hours after a roadblock of angry citizens stopped him.

A small group of parents, most of them women, gathered at the red brick school today. Mrs. Robert Ratts, a leader of the group opposing the principal, said the principal made no attempt to return to school and his classes met without a teacher.

The principal said yesterday he would return today. He could not be reached this morning.

Refinery Blast in Illinois Is Fatal to 12

Wood River, Ill., Sept. 18 — (AP) — A terrific explosion rocked the big Shell Oil Co. refinery here last night killing 12 workmen.

About 20 persons were injured seriously.

The explosion occurred at one of the refinery's large oil cracking units where a special night crew was working.

Panic broke out as flames lashed out from the explosion and enveloped workers.

Four bodies were recovered soon after the blast. Seven other men died at hospitals a few hours later.

"I saw men knocked to the ground," Willie Burchell, 47, of East Alton, Ill., a boilermaker's helper, said.

"They were screaming and begging for help, running with their clothes afire."

Burchell was atop a pumphouse, 20 feet above the ground. There were four or five explosions beneath him. Blocked by flames, he reached safety by sliding down an eight-inch pipe to the ground where flames licked at his legs as he leaped.

Those who died at hospitals were identified as:

Robert McGregor, 30, Alton, a mechanical engineer; 1 Malcolm Curtis, 36, Wood River, Ill., a pipefitter; Harry Orlerton, 35, Livingston, Ill., pipefitter's helper; Elvin Ray 39, Sorento, Ill., pipefitter's helper; Louis W. Dike, 50, East Alton, Ill., Joseph Mangers, 36, Alton, and Edward E. Gramer, Brighton, Ill.

One of the dead at the scene was listed as Henry Lamb, 43, Alton, a pipefitter foreman. The bodies recovered at the scene were badly charred.

Three men were listed as unaccounted for.

A flash fire following the explosion shot flames more than 50 feet into the air. It was quickly snuffed out by company firefighters, but the intense heat hung on keeping rescue workers from probing deep into the debris.

Cause of the explosion — the second major mishap at the refinery in less than a month — was not definitely determined. A company spokesman said a number of things may have caused it, including a pocket of gas or static electricity. A company official estimated damage might exceed $100,000.

Only last August 21 a fire created by lightning striking a gasoline storage tank caused $175,000 damage.

Normally 14 to 16 men are in the night crew, but approximately 40 men were in the area as members of a special meeting at the time of the explosion.

L. F. Smith, working about 100 feet away from the cracking unit which breaks down crude oil into high test gas, said the blast "shook our building like a leaf."

"We saw two men running down the road with the clothing afire. Another man tore off his clothes while he was still running. We couldn't hear the men screaming but we saw them. It was awful."

Star-Studded Hadacol Show Cancelled Out

Dallas, Sept. 18 — (AP) — A star-studded caravan show designed to advertise Hadacol patented medicine, was cancelled here in its 35th of a 50 performance schedule last night by the new owners of Hadacol.

The classic formula for coffee: "It should be hot as hades, black as midnight, and strong as a good woman's love."

If you get a cupful of that, it doesn't make much difference whether somebody dropped eggshells in the pot to settle it. You can thicken it with sugar, or thin it with fat cream. But you can't wreck it.

The average cup of drugstore or cafeteria coffee, however, is more likely to be nothing but lukewarm, grey liquid fog caught in crockery. It has the personality of swamp mist, strained through sulphur, and bitter as an old regret.

Though it is served in a vessel of beaten gold — and it isn't — the stomach detects it as a fraud and grumbles in rebellion. It misses the mellow bite of authority, the true fragrance.

East and west and north and south the daily search goes on, the great American quest — for an authentic cup of coffee.

The restaurant proprietor who can distill it properly, need never stay up at night trying to invent a better mousetrap. The world will beat a path to his door — and then beat in the door, if necessary, to get a cup.

But there is one ingredient most places don't seem to employ. They are trying to get a cup of coffee without using coffee. And that miracle no one has wrought.

DeQueen Coach, Fans Praise Hope Players

Of special interest to local fans, team members and school officials will be the following letter received here today from Coach of the DeQueen Leopards:

"The Editor
Hope Star
Hope, Arkansas
Dear Sir:

It has been called to our attention by players, fans, and the officials alike, that the football game played here Friday night was one of the cleanest games ever played on the local field. It is a pleasure to be host to a fine group of boys as those who represented your school here. It is a credit to your fine coach, school, and community. We are wishing you the very best of success in the weeks to come.

We thought you might be interested in these observations coming from our fans and that you might want to pass them on to your people."

Sincerely,

Seeks All-Out Production of A-Weapons

Washington, Sept. 18 (AP) — Senator McMahon (D-Conn.) called today for all-out mass production of atomic weapons to equip a mighty atomic army, navy and air force.

He said emphasis on atomic rather than conventional armaments would save U. S. taxpayers $30,000,000,000 a year.

The chairman of the senate-house atomic energy committee declared in a prepared senate address that all-out mass production could bring the cost of an A-bomb down to less than that of a tank.

He urged that this country spend $8,000,000,000 a year to equip an atomic army, navy and air force he said could guarantee American security by making it impossible for Russia to attack the free world.

He said that only $750,000,000 actually was paid out of the treasury for the atomic program in the year ending last June 30.

"Dollar for dollar," McMahon declared, "atomic delivering power is actually hundreds of times cheaper than TNT. An atomic weapon can produce, at a cost of twenty or thirty dollars, the same explosive force which costs literally thousands of dollars to produce by ordinary means."

"Money spent upon the atomic bomb could pulverize a dozen enemy war plants at no more expense than destroying a single plant with TNT—and this says nothing of the fact that one plane can deliver one A-bomb as against the huge armadas needed to deliver an equivalent cargo of block-busters."

Judge Lemley Clears Way for McMath Probe

Helen, Sept. 18 — (UP) — The way was cleared today for a more intensive investigation of Gov. Sid McMath's income tax returns.

Federal Judge Harry J. Lemley issued an order here yesterday to serve subpoenas on three West Memphis men, forcing them to submit records to the internal revenue department on money allegedly paid McMath in 1948.

United States Marshal Noble Miller was expected to serve the subpoenas today on West Memphis Banker John Mac Smith and auto dealers J. C. Johnson and J. C. McCaa.

The internal revenue department has been investigating McMath's income for the years between 1945 and 1950 but the three Crittendon county men had ignored summonses issued them last May by special Revenue Agent Charles Emory of Little Rock which had ordered that the trio submit records on the alleged payments.

Yesterday's court order makes it mandatory that the records be submitted to the internal revenue department and it requires the three men to appear before internal revenue officials in Little Rock Sept. 27.

A petition for the court order was filed last week by United States District Attorney James Gooch who was acting in behalf of the revenue department.

McMath has acknowledged that he has received some $10,000 in campaign donations from the West Memphis area. But the governor said in a statement last week that it is "well established" that contributions spent in a political campaign cannot be taxed as personal income.

W. H. Gregory, assistant to Gooch, said yesterday that the internal revenue department "simply is investigating" the case right now and that it won't be known whether any prosecution will be launched against McMath.

Gregory pointed out that the civil suit against the governor would have to be authorized by an attorney general of the United States. But a criminal action against income tax evasion could be instituted by the district attorney's office.

The only way the governor could be made liable would be if he had failed to report taxable income, Gregory said.

McMath was in San Francisco today where he will speak at the national convention of the American Federation of Labor tomorrow. He was not available for comment on the federal court order.

USS Iowa Is Back in Action

San Francisco, Sept. 18 — (AP) — The mighty USS Iowa, her mother ship swapped for anti-air, gave her crew a taste of open water today.

It's the second day of a shake-down for the 85,000-ton dreadnaught — the biggest and fastest battleship in the world.

The Iowa, just out of a 2 1/2 year hibernation at Hunter's Point naval shipyard here, had her first trial run yesterday.

It was all in San Francisco bay. Today she goes through the Golden Gate for maneuvers around the Farallone islands.

Capt. William Smedberg, the Iowa's skipper, was "delighted." So was his green and excited crew, most of whom had never been on a battleship before.

"I haven't one officer who has never served on a 16-inch gun turret," Smedberg said, "and only five of my enlisted men have had 16-inch gun experience."

The skipper wasn't bothered, however. "We'll make up for it in training," he said.

He spoke fondly of the mighty vessel which carried President Roosevelt to the Tolmarch conference and then joined the Pacific fleet in World War II.

She's a perfectly beautiful battleship, Smedberg said. "She handles like a destroyer."

This is no battleship. This is the heaviest cruiser in the world and she can do anything a cruiser can do. We can go 17,000 miles without refueling.

What I'd like to do in case of a really big war, I'd like to take this ship and nine fast small aircraft carrier and go all over the world. Hell, I don't want any destroyer screen, if we catch a torpedo, it might slow us down a bit, that's all."

The Iowa is the last of her class to return to active duty. For sister ships Missouri, Wisconsin and New Jersey, already are with the fleet.

WAC - WAF Team Coming to Town

All young ladies between the ages of 18 and 35 are invited to visit the local U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Office in room 102 of the City Hall building next Thursday the 28th of September.

Sgt. Short of the recruiting service announced today that Lt. Dorothy Carson of the Women's Army Corps and Sgt. Dorothy Thompson of the Women's Air Force will be in his office from 9:30 a. m. to 2:30 p. m. on that day, to interview the young ladies of this city who are especially desirous of finding a good job with a future.

Lt. Carson is especially interested in talking to recent high school graduates who plan to go to college in the next few years. She will explain the two year enlistment plan now in effect in the WAC whereby a girl may have the chance to serve her country and by using the excellent educational opportunity now offered in the WAC, she may be well on her way toward a degree by the time she is discharged. This is done at government expense.

There are many important jobs to be filled by women in the service right now and there are unlimited opportunities for advancement to go along with them.

Grim Hunt for Convicts on in Florida

Dunlap Springs, Fla., Sept. 18 — (AP) — A grim hunt centered in extreme northwest Florida today for two of the six convicts still at large in the mass break at Draper, Illinois.

They were reported armed with machine guns and revolvers, and some fugitives could be in this area, according to kidnapping two air force sergeants, holding up a car, and stealing several cars, and heading up a Florida highway patrol.

Police said after their report that the desperados vowed they wouldn't be captured alive.

They sought were among 10 who broke out of Draper prison, near Montgomery, Ala., Friday night.

Shooting out a guard and killing two others.

John M. L. Cline and C. Brooks, who were stationed at Eglin Air Force base, said they were stopped near Fort Walton, Fla., yesterday morning by two men who threw a large brick at them.

They said the unknown forced them to drive into woods "near Dunlap Springs, hold them captive almost eight hours, then drove off in their motor car."

Investigator R. Miller said he also believed there were at least six heavily armed men operating in this area in groups of two.

The chase was intensified in this area Sunday night after two men put a highway patrol car driven by Patrolman Carson Turkington out of commission with two shotgun blasts.

R. A. Baker, a Pensacola building contractor, was robbed by two men in his Valparaiso contracting office yesterday. The men trusted him up and tied in his station wagon.

Pennsylvanian to Head AFL Politics

San Francisco, Sept. 18 — (AP) — Joseph L. McDavitt, 53, former Philadelphia pianist, last night chosen to head the AFL's political campaign in 1952.

McDavitt, president of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, was named by the national AFL convention as director of labor's drive for political education.

He is the AFL's counterpart of the CIO political action committee (PAC).

McDavitt will succeed Joseph D. Keenan who was named last January as secretary of the influential AFL Building Trades department and also assigned to the defense production authority as a labor relations expert.

Mother Leaps to Death After Child

West Memphis, Sept. 18 — (AP) — Lord have mercy, Jim, the baby died.

With that shriek, Mrs. J. J. Smith of Holy Springs, Miss., leaped from the family auto before her husband could bring it to a stop.

Mrs. Smith was dead on arrival at the Memphis, Tenn., hospital. Her 18-month-old daughter Clara Bell, who was in the car, was treated.

Police said the child accidentally opened the door as he was driving down the highway. He had been in search of a farm to buy.

Limits Debate on Admission of Two Nations

Ottawa, Sept. 18 — (AP) — The Atlantic council reportedly decided today to suspend debate, presumably for 24 hours, on the American proposal to admit Greece and Turkey to full membership in the North Atlantic treaty organization.

An official informant said Denmark requested the delay in order to obtain instructions from Copenhagen government on whether to vote for or against the United States. Norway also had requested instructions.

Some sharp criticism of the American proposition ran through the morning debate, but indications were all governments — except for the two Scandinavian — would support the proposal when it came to a vote. Moreover United States officials appeared wholly confident that in the end Denmark and Norway would go along and the council before ending its Ottawa session Thursday would vote for their admission.

Denmark and Norway had asked their home governments for instructions last night, according to diplomatic informants, and needed more time for final action.

Danish Foreign Minister Ole Bjorn Kraft is reported to have told the council this morning that he was unable at the moment to declare his position.

Britain, The Netherlands and France spoke in favor of the proposal at that time. Today's speakers in the closed meeting were described as considerably more critical.

Despite the criticism, however, it was understood that all the speakers except the Scandinavians expressed willingness to go along with the idea — or as some of the objectors have put it: Not to stand in the way of what the majority of the council wants.

U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson put the expected proposal formally before the council last night. It was promptly supported by British foreign Secretary Morrison, Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France and Netherlands Foreign Minister Dirk U. Stikker.

The session adjourned with other members of the council still to be heard from today. But diplomats assumed the formal presentation of the proposal, plus the support given it by three of the foreign ministers, provided ample basis for requests for instructions by Lange and Kraft.

Favorable action by the council here would not be final. What Acheson proposed technically was that the council should recommend to member governments that Greece and Turkey be admitted to membership. If all 12 members ratified, which would mean approval by the U. N. senate and by parliaments in other countries, Greece and Turkey would then formally be invited to join.

Both countries have sought powers, particularly the United States, there is no question about their joining if asked.

Old Stanley Steamer Is the Speedier

New York, Sept. 18 — (AP) — The battle of the bugs has come to an end. And let it be known that a 1913 Stanley Steamer is speedier than a 1911 Stoddard-Dayton.

However, for the sake of accuracy in a superlative era, it might better be said that the Stoddard, rather than the steam-propelled relic, began in Chicago a week ago yesterday. The Steamer averaged 20.46 miles an hour. The defeated gas buggy's average was 20.22 miles an hour.

The four-wheeled tea kettle wheezed across a finish line yesterday about a minute ahead of the gasoline antique. Its actual margin of victory for the entire trip, however, was 37 minutes.

The one-minute figure represents the difference in time it took the two cars to reach a point near the Yonkers-New York City line from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., 75 miles away in the stretch drive which began yesterday morning.

It took the winning car 53 hours and four minutes to make the trip from the Windy City, and 53 hours and 41 minutes for the runner-up.

The driver of the pre-World War I steam buggy, 76-year-old Jack Brause, one-time vice-president of the Stanley Steamer company, smiled proudly at his triumph.

"I feel 100 per cent. I was sure all along I would win," he said in his moment of victory.

Rube De Launty, 70, who coaxed the gasoline antique eastward, only grunted.

Sponsored by the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry, where both drivers work, and Popular Mechanics magazine, the battle of the antiques was worth $500 to winner Brause.

After the race ended, the two auto granddaddies tore into midtown New York — as jaywalkers crawled out of the way — for a brief visit beneath Rockefeller center's towering skyscrapers.

Tone's Face Apparently Messed Up

Hollywood Sept. 18 — (AP) — Franchot Tone's face may look as if it had tangled with a food mixer when he leaves California hospital in two weeks.

Doctors attending the actor say they don't know how his profile will be for movie closeups when they remove the bandages. "In a general way," says Dr. Leland House, who patched up Tone's smashed face, said "it's reasonably certain he'll look like Franchot Tone, but as for closeups, who knows?"

Tone and his lawyer, Kenneth Chantry, were to confer today on whether to seek a criminal complaint against Actor Tom Neal, whose leathard fists sent Tone to the hospital. The actors came to blows early last Friday morning over the affections of Barbara Payton, a voluptuous blond movie actress.

Miss Payton, professing an undivided love for Tone, told newsmen Sunday after she had visited his hospital room that he had proposed and she had agreed to marry him in the very near future. She was to have married Neal in San Francisco last Sunday, and a few weeks ago she said Tone would be her next husband.

Wearing a most revealing sun dress and dark glasses, Miss Payton spent two hours with Tone late yesterday. When she emerged she declined to discuss the visit.

"Is your marriage to Tone still on?" a newsmen asked.

"That is another thing I will not discuss," she replied brusquely, and with that she jumped into her convertible and sped away.

Dr. Lee Siegel, also attending Tone, said the actor is showing improvement but still has head aches and sometimes becomes faint because of the concussion he sustained when knocked to the patio behind Miss Payton's home in Hollywood hills.

The actress said Tone escorted her home and asked Neal, who was waiting there for them, to leave. She denied Neal's statement that Tone struck the first blow. She maintained that Tone, a Phi Beta Kappa at Cornell, was too much of a gentleman for that sort of thing.

Barbara is going to have to remind herself, too, to get those bare bellies out of her pants. Neal used to do his weight lifting there while she took her sun baths.

Lawyers Asked to Help in Loyalty Probe

New York, Sept. 18 — (AP) — President Truman today urged the nation's lawyers to help guide loyalty investigations so as to "best strike the difficult balance" between national security and individual rights.

In a message to the 74th annual convention of the American Bar association, Mr. Truman noted that loyalty probes, on many levels, are being conducted throughout the country.

He said lawyers can help the people and authorities determine: Whether the investigations "are reasonable and practical methods of maintaining security or whether their potentialities in terms of stifling freedom of expression outweigh their utility as security measures."

The President's message said that lawyers should not let "criticism by the uninformed" make them afraid to defend persons charged with such crimes as conspiracy, sabotage and espionage.

It is the "moral responsibility" of the law profession to defend these persons, he said, in order to maintain "our tradition of free trial."

The President said that "in these trying times," many persons "posing as super-patriots, are, I believe taking advantage of confusion and fear for partisan purposes."

Although the nation now is united against the peril of "Soviet aggression," he said that "blind obedience to authority has never been characteristic of Americans."

"The free interchange of opinion and criticism," he added, has made possible "the most important element of national security we possess."

"The repressive security measures of the police state do not promote the over-all national security."

The message was read by Arthur J. Freund, of St. Louis, chairman of the ABA's section on criminal law.

too good this way."

Miss Garland said she would remain here two weeks, resting, then go to New York, where she will do a two-day stint when the Palace theater reopens a vaudeville revival. She recently completed an engagement at London's Palladium.

Judy Garland Back Home From Europe

Hollywood, Sept. 18 — (AP) — Judy Garland is back home from a five-month European tour, healthy and happy.

"I don't worry about my figure any more," she told friends after she had embraced her daughter, Liza Minnelli, free, and petted her pet poodle, John Cook.

Miss Garland's health cracked under the strain of trying to keep her weight down for her movie roles.

"I'm not going to attempt to regain one of those sleek Hollywood figures," she said. "I feel

Ex-Bookie King Names Officers in on Split

New York, Sept. 18 — (UP) — Bookmaker Harry Gross dramatically identified in Kings county court today each of the 18 policemen charged with splitting $1,000,000 in fees to protect his $20,000,000-a-year gambling empire.

Gross, the 35-year-old boy wonder of the bookmaking business, took the stand as the state's star witness in the mass conspiracy trial of the suspended or retired policemen.

Assistant District Attorney Julius Helfand asked him to step from the stand and identify by name the patrolmen who were charged with aiding and protecting his gambling syndicate in return for gifts and cash.

The short, pudgy former soda jerk made a natty picture in a dark blue suit with a white handkerchief, black tie and white shirt. His eyelids flickered as he testified in a strained voice, telling how he left school at 14 to work in a drugstore and turned to bookmaking shortly thereafter.

Gross testified he was born in

Contact Man May Link Boyle, Loans

Washington, Sept. 18 — (AP) — A Washington contact man won bidding today among witnesses in a senate investigation of the possible relationship between William M. Boyle Jr., Democratic national committee chairman, and government loans.

The prospective witness is Cecil A. Green, whose previous testimony before a senate subcommittee conducting the inquiry was by a former Reconstruction Finance corporation (RFC) official.

Senator Hoyer (D-Md.), the subcommittee chairman, said Green will be heard later this week. The subcommittee took a recess today as its public hearings resume tomorrow.

Hoyer's subcommittee set out to investigate reports that the American Lithofold corporation, St. Louis printing firm, got $45,000 of RFC loans in 1949 after hiring Boyle as its lawyer, and later paid him $8,000 as commissions. Boyle says he received $1,250 from the firm for legal work having nothing to do with the loans.

Hoyer said that Green, Lithofold's Washington representative, will be asked to explain his associations with Boyle and with a Georgia lumber dealer reported to have claimed he had such "good connections" in Washington.

Frank Price, former chief of loan operations in the RFC office of loans, testified yesterday he was present when Ory is reported to

DOROTHY DIX

Divided Duty

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am confronted with a problem shared by many girls my age. I have been married four months. I am 19, thirty my husband, is 22. He is in the Army and has been stationed about four hundred miles from here. Now he is being sent much further away and wants me to come and live there. I want to go, but am faced with the problem of my mother. She is divorced and works to support herself and my 8-year-old brother. She approves of my going with my husband, but the rest of our large family feels that I am wrong and that my duty is to my mother and not to my husband. I love my mother dearly, and want to do what is right for her.

Answer: There is no question but that your duty lies with your husband, and you belong where he is stationed just as long as you can be there. If your mother requires financial assistance, you might be able to help her to a small extent.

Keep in Touch
Write her as often as you can, phone when possible. She sounds like a reasonable and sensible person who just asks to be kept aware of your life and concern for her.

DEPUTY PROSECUTOR

Little Rock, Sept. 17 — (AP) — Ben Allen, a former Camden attorney now practicing law here, today was appointed a deputy in the office of Pulaski County Prosecutor Tom Downie.

In England, during 1700, coal was sold for as little as 50 cents a ton at the pithead.

her. Of course she will be lonely for you. That is to be expected, but children will marry. Parents must be prepared to have them leave home and the family especially now with so many young men in service who naturally want their wives with them.

You will find many problems — and many diversions — in your new life. These should all provide interesting subjects for your letters home. Lots of luck.

Dear Dorothy Dix: What can I do about my boy friend? I am very much in love with him, but most of my friends don't approve of him. My mother likes him; my father doesn't. Some people don't like him because of his mother, she does not have a good character, but why take that out on her son? Some people also say he is lazy, but he will work when he has a job.

Answer: It is very hard for you, I know, to form a just estimate of your sweetheart when there are so many things against him, but if you want to be sure he's a good matrimonial risk, take each item by itself and analyze it to the best of your ability. If possible, discuss them with a more or less disinterested person, such as a clergyman or adult friend.

The fact that the boy's mother is not of good character does not necessarily reflect on the son, but is a point to be carefully considered. The environment in which he was brought up is bound to have made some mark on his personality.

The mere fact that he will work when he has a job is in itself enlightening. Does he make every effort to see that he always has a job? Or does he just lay off until someone comes around and offers him one? A man who is unwilling to work makes a very bad husband unless his private income is ample for all contingencies. The fact, also, that your friend is disliked by many people is also cause for deep reflection. If a thorough analysis of his character convinces you that he has sufficient strength to rise above his disadvantages — take him!

Dear Miss Dix: I have been married for one year. My husband and I are congenial in every way except that I keep speaking of his ex-wife. I've hinted that I do not care to hear her name mentioned, but still he continues. I've tried to ignore it, but it stays in my heart and mind.

Answer: One thing every second wife can make up her mind to — she will eternally live in the house with the memory of wife No. 1. Since your husband ignores your wishes in this matter, all you can do is listen, smile and walk away. If he sees that you are not annoyed by references to his former mate, he'll stop them.

New York, Sept. 18. — While Margaret Bourke-White, a famous picture photographer, with a long record of flagrant association with Communism fronts, has been receiving extravagant courtesy and cooperation from the air force and the navy, Miss Angela Calomiris, an active patriot with a record as envious as Bourke-White's is not being having a difficult time.

Miss Calomiris is a photographer, in, who for five years, served as in, by the FBI in the Communist party in New York. She came forth and testified as a government witness in the long trial of the eleven arch-conspirators against this government. She came forth and testified as a government witness in the long trial of the eleven arch-conspirators against this government. She never was a Communist but posed as one as plainly that she was made executive secretary of the Photo League, the very position that Communists always try to control in cultural organizations. The Photo League was an important Communist front, which was listed by the attorney general of the United States as a subversive organization.

Margaret Bourke-White is listed in the records of the house committee as a "spion-age" of a kind given by this front and as a member of the "advisory board" of the Photo League school.
Recently, Miss Bourke-White has been favored with extraordinary facilities and courtesy from the air force and navy. The air force let her take many intimate pictures of the highly secret, last American bomber called B-47, the B-30 and other ships of the strategic air command under the responsibility of Lt. General Curtis LeMay. Then, even after her record had been exposed and formally reported to General George Marshall, then secretary of defense, she was allowed to fly in a navy helicopter over Chesapeake Bay, and Little Creek, Va. The helicopter fell during a simulated rescue while carrying an official passenger, this woman, who, in 1946, made campaign pictures, free, of Earl Browder and James W. Ford, the Communist candidates for president and vice president because "the poor things did not have any money and they asked her to."

Senator William E. Jenner, of Indiana, wrote a strong letter to Marshall demanding an explanation of Bourke-White's exploits in the strategic air force and was still awaiting his answer when she turned up in another assignment on the national defenses, this time at Little Creek, Marshall then resigned and Senator Jenner expects to answer to his original inquiry, but will repeat it at once to Marshall's successor, Robert A. Lovett.

Senator Harry P. Cain, of Washington, personally called on Dan Kimball, the secretary of the navy, and learned that Kimball already had written a letter to Life magazine, owned by Henry (Chub) O'Leary.
Lacey When Life asked the navy for permission to photograph the helicopter stunt the navy asked no questions as to whether the photographer to be assigned would be a "security risk."

Kimball told Cain he was now substantiating that if Miss Bourke-White were given the assignment again Life must assure him that she had been cleared as a "security risk."

Meanwhile, it has been arranged that Vice-Admiral John J. Balaban, commander of the Atlantic fleet air force, will receive 45,000 orders for his own records clearing, any photographer who is assigned by Life to complete this job. A news photo taken on Sept. 7, just after Miss Bourke-White fell in the water, shows her with her arm around the waist of the admiral.
(His arm is not around her waist,
however. The Norfolk Virginian-Pilot, in a story accompanying this and other pictures said the admiral was the one who "made arrangements" for the pictures.)

The New York Herald Tribune, long under the editorial influence of Joseph Barnes, the old protege of the notorious Frederick Vanderbilt II, was one of the publications which plugged Miss Bourke-White. Only two months ago, on July 13, a canned house-feature often devoted to covert propaganda but ostensibly without guile, gave her almost two columns of enthusiastic advertising without mention of her political character and associations. This feature was greatly publicizing a propaganda propagandist whose work had earned her cordial treatment from the Kremlin when she was in Moscow.

Meanwhile, Miss Calomiris has suffered outright personal indignity and, in, for the strong support of the American Legion magazine, would have been practically banished from the profitable practice of her profession because she spied on the Communists in photography. As matters turned out, James O'Neill, the editor of the Legion magazine and Frank Lisnecki, his assistant, working through the National Association of Magazine Publishers, got an interview with Bruce Gould, editor of the Ladies' Home Journal, and demanded an apology for the conduct of John Morris, picture editor of this magazine, toward Miss Calomiris. I will discuss these incidents tomorrow.

GOBS' BLOOD FOR KOREA—Giving their blood, as well as their service, are these sailors of the carrier USS Philippine Sea. Lined up on the carrier's flight deck in San Francisco are part of the 1100 shipmates who pledged their blood, making them the nation's largest single group of donors. The Red Cross "Bloodmobile" was hoisted aboard the carrier to take the blood, slated for Korea.

GERMANY TRIES HER WINGS—Allied relaxing of the laws against glider flying in Germany brought out this midjet, tailless glider for a successful flight test. Built by German engineer Werner Lutz, the craft has a 20-foot wingspread, cost about $100 to build. At top, the glider is about to be released from its tow rope; below, its small size and unique shape are seen as it sits in a field at Giessen, Germany.

Final Rites Held for Bill Klem

By The Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Sept. 18. — P. Rosa-ry services will be held tonight for William J. (Bill) Klem, veteran National league baseball umpire who died Sunday.

Funeral services will be tomorrow at St. Patrick's church. Miami Beach Burial will be in Miami's Greenwood cemetery.

Ford Frick, president of the National league where Klem umpired for 36 years before his retirement in 1941, will be among baseball notables at the funeral.

Klem had been in failing health for several months. He was 77.

Yankees Take Full Game Lead Over Indians

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cleveland's vanishing Indians are 10 of New York for the season but they may have left the pennant behind in Yankee stadium.

As they have done in all but one of their 11 games on the Yankees' home grounds, the Indians lost again yesterday. This time they dropped a railing 2-1 tussle that put them a full game behind the front-running New Yorkers.

It may be a case of not of the frying pan into the fire for the beleaguered Tribe, who open a two game series with the Red Sox today in Boston. The Red Sox, winners of six of their last seven starts and fresh from a 12-5 romp over the Chicago White Sox, are only a game and a half behind Cleveland in this tense three-team American league race.

Losing to New York is an old Cleveland custom. In the last 20 years the Indians have won only one season series from the Yankees. That probably accounts for only one Cleveland championship during that time.

Oddly enough, the Indians' edge over the Yankees did not come in 1948, Cleveland's pennant winning year. It came in 1945 — a 12 to nine edge — when the Indians wound up fifth. But they had the satisfaction of seeing the Yankees place fourth, the lowest New York finish since 1925.

It was Phil Rizzuto, the shortest of the Yanks, who beat the Indians yesterday with the shortest of hits. The winning blow a deft squeeze bunt that didn't even reach the pitcher's mound — brought in Joe DiMaggio with the payoff run.

It came in the last of the ninth after Cleveland Manager Al Lopez had ordered Pitcher Bob Lemon to walk Bobby Brown on purpose with runners on first and third and one out.

The victory went to Eddie Lopat, who squeezed the Indians with three hits to reach the 20-win mark for the first time in his career. The only Cleveland tally came in the sixth and it took an error to pave the way for the Indians' unearned run. An infield out followed by Bobby Avila's single brought the run across.

The Yankees, who made seven hits off Loser Lemon, had snapped a scoreless deadlock in the fifth when Rizzuto singled in Brown, who had lined a one-bounce ground ball double into the right field stands.

The stage for the winning marker was set by DiMaggio, who scratched a single off Al Rosen's glove with one out. Gene Woodling followed with a bounce past First Baseman Luke Easter that sent DiMaggio streaking into third. Then came the strategy that backfired.

Kremlin Called a Beast of Prey

Washington, Sept. 18. —(AP)—President Truman likened the Kremlin to "a beast of prey" today, he spoke at a ceremony in which the United States Constitution and Declaration of Independence were sealed in new protective cases.

Mr. Truman said the freedoms embodied in the yellowing parchment documents are growing throughout the world except in the Soviet Union whose rulers, he declared, hold "their citizens in terror and bondage."

"The Soviet citizens live in fear," the President told the audience at the Library of Congress. "Their society is a jungle, through which the naked power of the government prowls like a beast of prey, making all men afraid."

The precious 178-year-old Declaration of Independence and 164-year-old Constitution were locked away in gas-filled, glass and bronze containers to preserve them for centuries.

Scientists had worked for more than a decade designing the new cases to protect them against moisture, vermin, harsh light and other hazards while keeping them still visible, through double-paneled glass, for many future generations.

Mr. Truman said the pieces of parchment are more than historical relics — "they are a living force in our life today," containing ideas which will never perish.

"These documents," he said, "express the highest principles of certain life: That all men have certain unalienable rights, that governments are set up to provide for the welfare of the people, and that the rule of law stands above government and all citizen alike."

"These ideas have a life of their own. They have been a dynamic force in the history of our nation. They have inspired men, all around the world, to create new and independent governments, and to improve the conditions under which they live."

Then Mr. Truman gave a bare-knuckle description of "tyranny" under Soviet rule. He said the Soviet Union constitution has "a lot of fine language similar to that of the U. S. — guarantees of free speech, free press, free assembly, free religion, and personal liberty."

"The difference," he said, is that in this country, the constitutional freedoms mean something because the government is not above the law, as it is in Russia.

Mr. Truman added that the Soviet government has "systematic attacks and balances which may seem cumbersome to us at times, but which succeeds in preventing the government from attaining absolute power."

Mr. Truman said he had "a lot of faith in the American people, and I am sure they will continue to improve the conditions under which they live."

THE STORY: John Clayton, a young man who has just returned from the front lines of the Korean War, is in a state of shock. He is in a hospital, and he is being treated by a doctor. He is being treated for a wound that he received in the back of his head. He is being treated for a wound that he received in the back of his head.

ON the blanket in front of me were nine hundred hard Yankee dollars. All mine by gun-induced default.

Riding to go, I felt a hand on my shoulder. Turning, I glanced at it, finding it more nearly resembled the paw of an old bear grizzly than any human member. The owner of the hand redeemed the note of its bearlike promise.

He was not over five and a half feet tall, weighing I would say, 200 pounds, yet his voice was oddly soft, almost womanlike. "Son, I thought for a minute there you were gonna be weighed down by your boots when you made the big jump."

"Friend," I agreed, anxious to talk now that the tension was broken. "I was never so scared in my life."

"Wouldn't be surprised." There was a chuckle in the soft voice. "You looked cool as a cucumber and twice as green. Any idea who that was you were buckin'?"

Reaction to the string-up of the game was setting in hard. My esophagus wrestled manfully to see if it couldn't keep my stomach pinned down. Apparently it could, at least long enough for me to answer. "No, none at all. His partner called him 'Slate,' I think."

"Yep. That's right. Name's Slatemeyer. John Slatemeyer. Slate to his friends, of which there are none. He's got another brand on him in this here range's lull books, though. Folks out there, gesturing vaguely off toward the west, 'call him 'Arapahoe Jack.'"

I thought it best to find a building to lean on. My knees had already turned to pure gelatin, while my gut threatened anew to loose its hammerlock on my stomach.

IF I had made an enemy, I had done no picnic's job of it. Arapahoe Jack was almost a latter-day Simon Girty. I knew at once why the onlookers at our little game paid me such respect of distance following Slate's departure. Arapahoe Jack!

"If you're bound west," he offered, after hearing my story, "and can handle yourself like you can your gun, I can hire you on. My name's Ed Geary."

"Where you heading and what's the work?"

"Headin' for Montana Territory. Takin' a wagon train through. Twenty hook-ups. Mostly the people are headin' out for the goldfields. That ain't so much in the fact they're headin' to go across the Powder River country to get there."

"Where do I fit in?"

"Slatemeyer's scarce. There's more trains than there is of us to guide 'em. I need help and I figure four years of sneakin' around in the southern woods, pot-smootin' Yankies, nominates you."

"Master," the impulse to accept came on me suddenly, "you've got yourself an apprentice. My name's John Clayton and west is my direction."

TWENTY-EIGHT days later, as we approached Fort Laramie, an event took place which shook even Geary to the soles of his moccasins.

Geary called me to him shortly after sunset, saying he had spotted smoke from many fires to our north. We squatted out of earshot of the others under the bed of the lead wagon.

"Colonel," he continued the always called me by rank, over my objections, "if those fires are what I think they are, we're in for a hot time."

"Indians?"

Paris, Sept. 18. —(AP)—Maurice Petsche, 35, veteran financial expert and active resistance worker during the Nazi occupation of France, died here yesterday.

A right winger, he coopered with Socialists and other left-center parties and was minister of finance in all coalition governments since 1948 until the present one.

He gave up the post after the June 17 elections but agreed to serve as minister without portfolio.

Sulphur sells for about one cent a pound.

Below us, spreading along both banks of a beautiful stream, lay scores of evenly spaced tents.

"No. Worse." He kept his voice low, talking fast. "You remember the trapper that rode through, headin' down-river when we was non-bullied?"

"Yes. Where'd he come from?"

"He come from Laramie. Big man from Washington in Laramie. Name's Taylor. Head of the Indian Bureau, I think. Red Cloud, Crazy Horse, and pretty nigh the whole Sioux Nation has come into the fort to talk treaty on this new Hozenan Trail, which the Army is aimin' to lay a string of forts along and which we're aimin' to take our train up."

"Them Sioux ain't agency Indians. Red Cloud is ugly and his people is with him. Council's called for tomorrow mornin'."

I had learned much from Geary about the Indians and their country since leaving Kansas City, but this knowledge didn't give significance to what he was now saying. "Where does that put us, Ed?" I asked. "If they're all in Laramie what are those fires to the north?"

"Only one answer to that." His tones were so low I scarcely caught the words. "Fraid I know what it is, but I'm ridin' north right now to make sure. You want to come along?"

IN an hour we were working our way to the crest of the last ridge between us and the fires, Geary seeming to have no more trouble finding his way than in daylight. We tethered our horses and crept the last few yards on our bellies. Not knowing what to expect, I parted the last scrub-growth, peering down into the valley below. Geary made no sound, but the intake of my breath was as sharp as an arrow's whisper.

Below us, spreading along both banks of a beautiful stream, stretching for half a mile, dotted by dozens of campfires and ghost-white against the moonless night, lay scores of evenly spaced tents; a scene which at once brought nostalgia to an ex-officer of the Confederacy.

"It's an Army Camp, Ed. Infantry. Must be thousand men."

"That makes it perfect," said Geary, his voice as calm as water in a horse trough. "Not enough of them to do any good, too many not to cause trouble. Colonel, we've got to move down there and find out what they're doin' here."

It was a nervous half-hour which saw us finally on our bellies 100 yards out from the pickets.

"We won't have to go into that camp, after all. You see that man in the buckskins? The one sittin' just outside the firelight in front of the command tent?" I finally made out the figure he referred to.

"Well, you watch him."

As I followed his instructions, Geary cupped his hands tightly to his mouth, emitting such a marvelous series of fox barks that I could not believe they came from barrages preceded them. "Heartbreak ridge" was named after another savage battle there two weeks ago. It is just north of "bloody ridge."

Hundreds of Allied artillery shells pounded against the thick walls of log and dirt bunkers of the Reds. Some were so thick that only the heaviest Allied artillery could penetrate.

Allied pilots reported one direct hit on a bunker, with an estimated 30 to 40 Red casualties.

Sunday the Fifth Air Force defied the elements and mounted relentless attacks on Red facilities.

More than 640 missions were flown, pilots reported 300 Red cars destroyed or damaged, the greatest number in a single day since last May.

Gen. Ridgway Willing to Revive Talks

Tokyo, Tuesday, Sept. 18. —(AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway notified the Communist high command Monday he was still ready to resume cease-fire negotiations broken off by the Reds.

However, the supreme Allied commander made a 12-hour flying trip to Korea to confer with his Eighth Army commander, Gen. James A. Van Fleet, in case his offer was again rejected.

He also saw British Commonwealth division commanders before he returned to Tokyo Monday night.

Ridgway's terse message to the Reds made no mention of Kaesong, which he previously had declared unacceptable for further armistice talks.

It was not immediately clear whether Ridgway would continue to insist that the conference site be changed to avoid further interruptions, or if he would be willing to send his cease-fire team back there upon reaching "mutually satisfactory" understanding with the Reds.

Ridgway's headquarters at midnight described the supreme commander's trip to Korea and return as "routine."

However, the gravity of the military situation in Korea has been increasing for days. The Reds have been concentrating strongly on the western front and a Red offensive there was considered very possible if not probable.

It was the supreme commander's second Korean visit since the Reds called off armistice talks Aug. 23, with the first of a series of 12 charges that Allied ground and air forces violated the five-mile neutrality zone around Kaesong.

In the flurry of charges and denials, Ridgway on Sept. 6 proposed that the talks be moved to a new site. The Reds replied Saturday that the suggestion was "completely unsatisfactory and unacceptable."

In his reply to that message Monday the Allied supreme commander said:

"If you are now disposed to terminate the suspension of armistice negotiations which you declared on 23 August, I am still prepared to order my liaison officers to a meeting at the bridge at Panmuned with a Stanley party on Thursday evening in her home.

Despite Calender Fall Is Near

By The Associated Press

The calendar doesn't call for it, but that nip in the air is a tip that fall is practically here.

The autumn season gets under way officially Sept. 21, but the weather bureau said today that it has taken a head-start over most of the country. Temperatures early today were generally below seasonal normals.

That doesn't mean you have to dig the car-muffs out of the mothballs, but if you're up and about during the evening hours it might be wise to have a topcoat handy. Daytime temperatures are expected close to normal over most of the nation.

KILLED IN ACCIDENT

Blytheville, Sept. 17. —(AP)—Bobby Rosebrough, 29-year-old Negro woman, was killed yesterday when a truck with four persons in the cab overturned near here.

Will Buckner, Negro driver of the truck, was charged with involuntary manslaughter, driving while intoxicated, having no drivers license and driving with four persons in the cab.

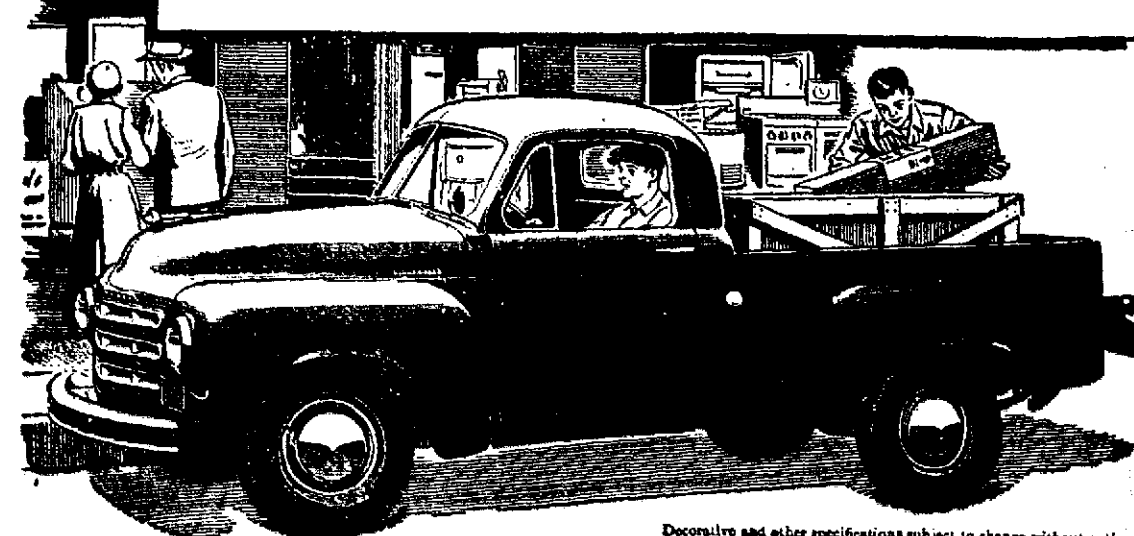

GETS HONORARY DEGREE

Ottawa, Sept. 18. —(AP)—Italy's Prime Minister Alcide De Gasperi was awarded an honorary degree of doctor of laws by the University of Ottawa last night. He told an audience of diplomats and educators that material efforts to win peace are insufficient without moral preparation.

The U. S. Army reached its greatest size of 8,266,373 men and women including 835,403 officers in 1945.
